27.03. Help > About mSupply

You can get a lot of useful information about your current installation in the Help>About mSupply menu item. When you choose this from the menus, this window opens:

- mSupply version: This sectio, at the top, shows tyou wnat version of mSupply you are running and when it was released (date and time).
- Paths: This section shows you some of the paths to the datafile and the log file in case you need to track them down.
- Show table records button: If you click on this button the table below it will be populated with the names of the tables in the mSupply database in the Table column and the number of records each holds in the Records column.
- Show sync records button: If you click on this button the table below it will be populated with the names of the synchronisation sites set up in the datafile in the Site column and the number of sync records waiting for each site in the Records column. If there are a lot of sites, you can type something in the Filter site field and the list will display only those sites that contain what you have typed.
- Authorisation button: A very special button, which opens a password entry window. If you enter the correct password, you enter a world of wonder and spectacular beauty. You also get access to lots of special functions that only The mSupply Foundation staff have access to 🙂.

// Previous: 27.02. mSupply Support Web Portal | Next: 28. Frequently Asked Questions //

From:
https://docs.msupply.org.nz/ - mSupply documentation wiki

Permanent link:
https://docs.msupply.org.nz/help:about_msupply

Last update: 2024/09/06 11:12